

Tom DiNuoscio

Tom DiNuoscio hails from Mount Gilead, OH, a small town located north of Columbus, OH. He graduated from Lakota East High School in 2001. Tom has performed and taught with many fine marching bands, drum corps, indoor performance ensembles and wind ensembles in the states of Ohio, Texas, California and Tennessee. Tom is a graduate of Wright State University with degrees in Music Education and Performance. Tom has played under many great batons such as Timothy Foley, John Bourgeois, H. Robert Reynolds, Mallory Thompson, Frank Battisti, William Wakefield, and Frederick Fennell.

In 2004, Tom served as the low brass tech for Trinity Drum and Bugle Corps out of Texas. Tom also serves many local schools in private lessons as well as a show designer for many local schools in the Columbus, OH area.

In 2004, Tom was involved in an international performance tour to Matsusaka, Japan, and Seoul, Korea where he performed in several concerts during the tour.

Tom is currently the director of bands at Mount Gilead High School in Mount Gilead, OH. He is eager and ready to share his knowledge and experiences with all members this upcoming summer!